

HAIR

Take control of your cut

A hairdresser's inch can differ majorly from your own so always get them to point to exactly where they plan to snip. Don't, and it could all end in tears – or no hair.

Suss the stylist

OK, so it is kind of shallow but it's always a good idea to check out your hairdresser's hair before you let them near your locks. If they look like Sharon Osbourne after a scissor fight, it might be a sensible move to book in with someone else...

Stand up and be heard

It's fine to complain halfway through your cut if you feel your hair's being unnecessarily hacked. Politely ask your stylist to stop then speak to the manager. Cut can't be corrected? Do. Not. Pay. And warn your mates off visiting the salon in future!

from HAIR THAT NEVER GROWS PAST A CERTAIN LENGTH
PROTECTION is better than CURE
"your hair never reaching its maximum, growth is a frustrating, upsetting nightmare!"

THE DIY VERSION
Flowing locks without the eight-hour salon session? Try the miracle Lee Stafford RU Taking Protection Growth Treatment Mask, £6.99

THE DIY VERSION
Fight fringe rage with Boots Professional Hairdressing Scissors, £7.10

THE DIY VERSION

Salon Quality Wax Away Warm Wax With Green Tea + one microwave = professional finish, £6.49

Salon Quality
Wax Away
Warm Wax with Green Tea

THE DIY VERSION

Salon Quality Miss Wax Away Mini Wax Strips make for a quick 'n' easy wax in minutes, £2.99

WAX

Bare down there

If you're going for a Brazilian check your therapist knows exactly what you mean before you let her loose. Being left completely bald will make for a good story down the pub, but is a damn pain when the hair starts to grow back.

Doggy style

Waxing is embarrassing full stop, but being asked to get on all fours is taking the biscuit. Those hard-to-reach areas are perfectly accessible from a lying down position so if you're asked to flip over tell her you'd like to stay where you are, thanks all the same!

Pants free?

If you're after the landing strip look you will need to whip off your pants. Keep them on and you'll end up with a messy lopsided finish. Nice!